COURSE DESCRIPTION
There are many ENT disorders that go unrecognized, or can be confused with other disorders that may resemble common ENT disease processes due to confusion with overlapping symptoms or failure to recognize pertinent physical findings. This course will provide, through lectures, demonstrations, panel discussion, and a hands on skills lab, some key factors in identifying and treating a number of common ENT disorders as well as when referral to an Otolaryngologist should be considered. This year’s symposium features a choice between two breakout sessions: “Hands-on training in the diagnosis and treatment of Benign Paroxysmal Positional Vertigo” or “Pediatric ENT Emergencies: What needs action now or later?”

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES
Upon conclusion of this program, participants should be able to:
• Recognize the difference between sinus headaches and other types of headaches
• Differentiate between various types of vertigo and discuss their management
• Identify patients with Benign Paroxysmal Positional Vertigo and apply canalith repositioning maneuvers
• Identify and treat several common ear conditions
• Evaluate the lump in the neck
• Identify, evaluate and treat the patient with nasal airway obstruction
• Identify, evaluate and treat the patient with sinusitis or rhinitis
• Demonstrate the various physical exam techniques used in the ENT exam
• Identify the patient who may benefit from hearing amplification and discuss current hearing aid technology
• Give examples of Pediatric ENT emergencies and discuss which ones need action now or later

Attendance at this Mayo course does not indicate nor guarantee competence or proficiency in the performance of any procedures which may be discussed or taught in this course.

INTENDED AUDIENCE
This course is designed for family practitioners, internal medicine physicians, pediatricians, physician assistants, and nurse practitioners.
